This Kennedy's phrase have^s a deep and really ¹⁸ actual meaning for all generations. Unfortunately, today a lot of people think country must give them all they want but, in my opinion, it's absolutely false. Most of this people never do anything to improve their country's life and even their own.

John Kennedy wanted to say: firstly you should do something for your native country and ^{then} after government will help you and your family. I think people ^{who} which want get all from government are simply lazy because a man who really loves his country can do a lot of things to improve it.

So, I think John Kennedy was perfectly right in his utterance and all mankind should agree with him because lazy man is a problem for all countries and all generations. We should remember this words to improve our life and be a man who really loves his native country
